TSING-TAU SHOWS NO TRACE OF LONG SEIGE

Tsing-Tao, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press Correspondence)—Few traces remain of the long siege which robbed the Germans of this model city and turned it into Japanese hands. By means of aeroplane scouts the Japanese were able to direct the fire of their big guns against the forts of the heights surrounding Tsing-tao so accurately that little damage was done to anything but the military strongholds. A few stray shells landed in the city. Pieces of shells did slight damage to the American consulate. The Brazilian Consulate was wrecked. A corner was knocked off the Prinz Heinrich Hotel, a pretentious building on the water front. But all damaged walls have been repaired and the beautiful city which the Germans carved out of the granite hills facing Kiao-Chow is moving along peacefully, little changed excepting that Japanese have replaced Germans.

Instead of 3,500 Europeans who lived in Tsing-tao previous to the siege, 12,500 Japanese have settled here. Many of these have opened up shops and taken over business which the Germans conducted. The Japanese government discouraged this rush to Tsing-tao, which was overdone to the extent that many of the new shops have had to close.

"Military necessity," has enabled Japanese officials to take over many private institutions as well as the public buildings: Lieutenant-Colonel Yoshimura, the military governor, occupies the handsome stone structure formerly used by Colonel Waldeck, the German governor of the concession, who is now a prisoner in Japan. This imposing building surmounts a high knoll in the heart of the European section of the city and the great white flag with the red moon in it which floats from the lofty tower is the first thing which meets the eye of a visitor entering Tsing-tao on the railway manned by Japanese.

A Japanese garrison of one battalion occupies the barracks on the heights overlooking the city. Japanese soldiers police the city and two regiments of Japanese are scattered along the 246 miles of railway built by the Germans to connect their seaport with the railway system which touches Peking, Tien-tsin and Shanghai and connects those centers with the Yang-tsekiang and other great rivers penetrating the interior of China.

General Ohtand commands the Japanese forces in Tsing-tao and along the Shantung railway. Baron Funakoshi, who was attached to the Japanese Embassy at Berlin before the war but left that city previous to Japan's declaration of hostilities, is in charge of what the Japanese call a "diplomatic bureau," an organization designed to look after claims and international questions growing out of the war conditions. The American consul, Mr. R. Peck, returned to Tsing-tao immediately after the siege and is looking after the interests of Americans and Belgians in a semi-official way. He has no official standing and is in much the same position as American consuls in Belgium. To apply for official recognition from the Japanese would imply admission by the United States of Japan's sovereignty in Tsing-tao and the entire Kiao-Chow concession held by Germany.

This comprises an area of many square miles along Kiao-Chow Bay in addition to the city of Tsing-tao proper, but does not include the town of Kiao-Chow, which is frequently confused with the concession bearing the same name.

Rumors are in circulation in Tsing-tao that the Japanese will soon establish a civil government in the concession, but no official announcement has been made. Japan has turned the customs over to China, under Japanese supervision, retaining 20 per cent of the receipts for operating purposes. Broadly speaking, Japan now stands just where Germany did before the war in relation to the concession. Japan has substituted its name for Germany throughout the treaty agreement between China and Germany, granting the Germans the 99-year lease on the seaport territory and the right to build railways in Shantung province.

SERVICE CLUB FACES DROUGHT

Drys Would Take License From Army and Navy Men.

(Washington Dispatch.) Members of the Army and Navy club are confronted with a more serious problem than that which they faced when Secretary Daniels issued his famous dry order affecting life aboard ship. The "Excelsior" Board of Washington has been asked by the Anti-Saloon league to refuse a renewal of the club's license for the sale of grog.

The matter came up today when the attorney for the Anti-Saloon league attacked the club's application on the ground that its bar is located in a residential district and that the membership of the organization does not conform to the requirements of the Jones Work exercise law.

The board took the matter under advisement and will render a decision before November 1.

Future of the "Movies"

(Judge.) Willis—A few more years will see the end of the moving picture business.

Gillis—How so?

Willis—Lack of attendance.

Gillis—Nonsense. Their popularity is increasing daily.

Willis—Maybe; but mark my words, at the rate they are going, in a few years everybody will either be acting in them or running a picture show, and there won't be anybody left to watch the pictures.

Doctor—How do you feel, Colonel when you have actually killed a man?

Colonel—Oh, not so bad. How do you feel—London Punch.

A woman not only wants to be beautiful, but she wants to be told that she is.

ues lined with dignified modern buildings of granite and brick. A magnificent marine drive, was created which winds all about the concession and stands out in striking contrast to the Chinese roads, which have existed for thousands of years but are scarcely passable for a loaded donkey.

The Germans hoped to make Tsing-tao a German Hong Kong. It was to be a naval base commanding entrance to Canton and North China trade just as Hong Kong is the stronghold controlling the commerce of South China. But she lacked the navy to defend her remote outpost in the Far East and Japan's overwhelming military strength was too much for the garrison of 2,500 regulars and 5,000 reservists which stood out against a force of 18,000 Japanese.

Although the Tsing-tao railway was not opened until 1914, in ten years the German port grew to 40,000 inhabitants, outstripped Chiaocho to the south of it, and was threatening the supremacy of Tientsin to the north. It served a province with 40,000,000 inhabitants and promised to become supreme in North China. But the war checked its progress. Its ownership and future developments are now shrouded in uncertainty. Europeans in China never expect to see Germany regain its concession. Although Japan has promised to restore Tsing-tao and the entire concession to China, neither the Chinese, nor Europeans resident in China, ever expect to see Japan surrender its prize absolutely.

TAKE SALTS FOR THE KIDNEYS IF YOUR BACK HURTS

We Should Drink Lots of Water and Eat Less Meat, Says Noted Authority on Kidney Disorders

Recommends a Spoonful of Jad Salts In Glass of Water Before Breakfast to Stimulate Kidneys and Eliminate the Uric Acid

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region; you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

● Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.
